P R O L O G U E

... To those individuals who have been involved in a network of services for the benefit of elderly residents of Montana, this publication serves as a vehicle of communication.

This document outlines the people at all levels of involvement: participants, volunteers, service providers, planners and advisors. It tells the story from many different points of view that emphasises the needs for a commitment from the community and a system of interrelated services. Needs cannot be separated and treated independently. There must be a system which can respond to all needs. The links in such a system are the people who provide a multitude of talents: the bus driver who picks up the elderly to take them to the center, the I & R worker who tries for days to unravel a problem and locate a resource, the volunteer who checks in the senior participant for a nutrition program---they are all part of the system. They are all connected. They are all committed. And each one can make a difference in the lives of Montana's senior citizens.

This book is the people and the system that links them.

You---the volunteer, agency staff, elected officials and older persons---are AGING...

THE ROLE OF GOVERNMENT IN PROVIDING SUPPORTIVE SERVICES FOR THE ELDERLY

Of the various groups in American Society, the elderly are among those most affected by government's action or inaction. Beginning in 1935 with the passage of the Social Security Act, Congress has enacted over 56 programs aimed at improving the status and conditions of older persons. The responsibility for implementing these programs has been spread among 25 different Federal agencies.

To counter the effect of such widespread responsibility, Congress first enacted in 1965 and substantially amended in 1973 the Older Americans Act. Basically, the Act created a tri-level "Aging Network" that involves a specific agency of the Federal government, a designated agency of state government, and the local communities in planning and implementing services for the aged.

The "Aging Network" under the Older Americans Act and how it affects services for the aged in Montana is as follows:

1. The Federal Level: The Administration on Aging (A.O.A.) located in the Office of Human Development (O.H.D.) of the United States Department of Health, Education and Welfare (H.E.W.), is the responsible Federal agency in the network. AOA serves as the Government's chief advocate for the elderly, coordinates all Federal programs that concern the elderly, and allocates funds for all programs authorized under the Older Americans Act.

The relationship between AOA (including the Denver Regional Office), Montana's S.R.S. Aging Services Bureau and the seven Area Agencies on Aging was primarily established by the 1973 amendments to the Older Americans Act. AOA, through the Denver Regional Office, grants funds to Montana on the basis of an annual state plan. The state plan identifies statewide program objectives and is, for the most part, a collation of the individual plans submitted by the Area Agencies on Aging.

2. The State Level: The Aging Services Bureau, located in Montana's Department of Social and Rehabilitation Services, is the focal point of all programs for the aged in this state. The Bureau is the overall planner, coordinator and evaluator of all Federal and state funded programs designed to serve the elderly of Montana. By regulation, the only direct service that the state agency can provide is information and referral. Consequently, the primary role of the Aging Services Bureau is that of advocacy and state-level administrator of programs funded for the elderly. Through a staff of eleven, including field coordinators, the Bureau distributes state and Federal funds, evaluates and assesses programs, provides technical assistance and training for a statewide system of Area Agencies and service providers that deal directly with the older citizens of Montana.

The Aging Services Bureau's yearly operation is defined and guided by an annual State Plan for Aging Services. This plan is adopted and put together through the input and cooperation of the Area Agencies on Aging, a 21-member statewide Advisory Council, and a public hearing held for citizen participation.

3. The Local Level: Area Agencies on Aging, of which there are seven in Montana, are the "grass roots" administrators of programs and services for seniors. The Area Agencies, mandated by the 1973 amendments to the Older Americans Act, are charged with the continuing process of planning services for older persons at the local level, coordinating the actual delivery of needed services, full utilization of existing resources, and development of new or additional resources. Each of the seven Area Agencies in this state is responsible for a specific geographic area of the state.

In the planning process for a years service activities, objectives are established by the Area Agencies. The Areas individually develop service plans that are submitted to and approved by the Aging Services Bureau. From the seven Area Plans is generated a State Plan that is submitted to and approved by the AOA via the Denver Regional Office.

Through this process and with the interaction and coordination of all three levels (Federal, State and Local), the "Aging Network" provides and coordinates services designed to enhance and improve the lives of Montana's senior population.

MONTANA INFORMATION/REFERRAL AND OUTREACH

FOR SENIOR CITIZENS

The key to the Information and Referral Program in Montana is a toll-free incoming only telephone to the Governor's Office through his Citizen Advocate. This initial connection gives the program the greatest strength that a state program can have. The Citizen Advocate transfers all calls from, or dealing with, persons 55 and over, on the direct trunk line to Aging Services Bureau. Aging Services is a part of Community Services Division with the Department of Social and Rehabilitation Services. Manning the toll-free telephone within Aging Services are two retired persons working four hours per day each. These two Referral Technicians are under the supervision of Aging Services Bureau, but they are hired by, and responsible to, the Area Agency on Aging responsible for the county in which state government is located. Each area agency in the state has an adequate number of Referral Technicians to make personal contact on followup of any persons who utilize the Information and Referral network.

The major purpose of the Montana Information and Referral is not to deliver the services requested, but to see that the agency responsible for service delivery does its job. It is very difficult for an agency to not respond to a specific individual with a specific problem when they know that a community advocate is going to check to see that attention was addressed to the client. A very high percentage of inquiries are with respect to a problem or mix-up with Social Security benefits. The working relationship with the Information and Referral network and SSA has developed to a point that most difficulties are resolved within hours. Prior to this network and the working relationship, some cases were unresolved for years.

Outreach is accomplished by the referral technicians throughout the state "mingling in the community". These technicians attend senior citizens meetings, nutrition sites, county council on aging meetings and any other groups of citizens that may be composed of older Montanans or be interested in this segment of the population and tell them of the Information and Referral Network. The program is designed to use older people in the network and establish one-to-one, person-to-person contacts. This prevents the program from working in generalities and restricts it to solving one persons problems at a time.

For a control system, primarily to keep everyone in the network informed of the same thing at the same time, and to assure that no "cases" are lost, the initial call is written up on color coded, three copy paper. One copy for the state office, one for the area agency and one for the local referral technician. When the local technician follows up on the action taken and determines if any further difficulties are present, they fill out the followup form. This form is also color coded with three copies. These copies are sent back, one for the technician, one for the area agency and one for the state office. When you have the two proper colored reports in your hands, the case is complete. Call, action, followup and close. It works.
